REPORT ON EXPOSURE VISIT TO KELSIH

Dated: 26th October, 2022

On the breezy morning of October 26th, 2022, we kicked off our college outing with a laid-back departure from campus at 8:00 am. Boarding the bus, we cranked up the tunes and let loose, singing and goofing around as if we were on our own private concert tour. Amidst the laughter and banter, stories of our escapades and inside jokes filled the air, setting the tone for the day ahead.

Rolling into our destination around 10:00 am, we were greeted by a sprawling hangout spot with not one, but two cool pools just waiting to be splashed in. While some of the gang dove straight in, others took charge of snack duty, whipping up some killer fruit juices and munchies to keep us fueled up. Our professors, taking the more dignified route, arrived fashionably late around 11:30 am in the HoD's ride, ready to join the party.

From then on, it was a blur of laughter, dancing, and endless photo ops, with some of the crew meticulously curating their Instagram feeds between cannonballs. As the sun started its descent, our kitchen-savvy pals took over dinner duty, while the rest of us pitched in and played sous chef for a bit. Wrapping up the day with a quick prayer led by our buddy John, followed by a pep talk from our HoD, Professor Lalnunluanga, stressing the importance of kicking back and bonding for better grades, we dug into a feast fit for kings around 5:00 pm. And just like that, with satisfied bellies and a truckload of memories, we packed up and rolled out at 6:00 pm, already plotting our next adventure.

The exposure visits wasn't some mystical quest or epic journey, but was it a blast! And beyond all the laughs and good times, that little outing taught us a thing or two about teamwork, friendship, and how a bit of bonding can make even the toughest semesters a whole lot sweeter.
