MESSAGE

I am glad that the Students' Union, Government Aizawl North College is bringing out the 21st Annual College Magazine titled 'Parfung', to showcase not just the talent of students of the college but also contributions of the faculty and college administration.

It goes without saying that college students must concentrate on studies so as to do well in their examinations and that the faculty have an important role to play in moulding their students into responsible adults. On this occasion, I would like to go beyond obvious words of encouragement to our students and draw their attention to the stark realities which face them today. Covid-19 has completely changed the way we live and as I have remarked in some of my messages in other college magazines, students are now in danger of not experiencing college life as we know it. Physical classes have been suspended for quite some time with online sessions being the only means by which education can be imparted safely. Even during normal times, students have the onerous responsibility of trying to balance academics, duties to family, societal obligations and their personal lives in a way that is healthy and productive. In an atmosphere that now has been forever changed by the pandemic, it is crucial for students to realize just how significant the time they spend as students is going to be viz. their future lives and careers. Government jobs are not as easy to get as before and even the private sector has inexorably been hit by the effects of lockdown. A concept like "Work from Home" which was unheard of earlier, is now ubiquitous especially in the technology sector. Many companies, particularly those in the aviation, service and hospitality industries have had to implement lay-offs resulting in unemployment for hundreds of thousands of otherwise qualified personnel. Small businesses and entrepreneurs have been among those hardest hit by the effects of the pandemic and many will not recover. In addition, job redundancies are becoming more and more commonplace as advances in science and technology result in the replacement of human labor in favour of machines and robots. Such is the state of the economy today and while I am confident that whatever challenges we face now shall be overcome, it will take time and the collective efforts of everyone to achieve this. I, therefore, urge students to use their time wisely, to take care of their health, both mental and physical and to discard habits and activities that serve no purpose towards their advancement. Identify areas of interest, set practical goals and work towards achieving them, remembering that mediocrity is not an option if they want to thrive in an ever competitive environment no longer limited to the narrow boundaries of our State. It is also incumbent upon students to cultivate responsible financial habits from an early age. Learn to save and invest, learn to live within your means and familiarize yourselves with the basics of personal finance so that you may make prudent financial decisions once you embark on your chosen careers. I would also urge the faculty to re-dedicate themselves to their mission as educators and remind them of their responsibility in sparking the interest of their students in matters beyond the academic syllabus. Theirs is perhaps one of the most important professions of our time indeed.

I would like to congratulate the Students' Union of Government Aizawl North College for bringing out their annual magazine despite challenging circumstances. I convey my warmest wishes to all readers.

MESSAGE

I am very happy to note that the Editorial Board has come up with the Annual Magazine “PARFUNG” for the Academic Year 2020-2021. The year has been a very different experience for all of us due to the pandemic.

The College Magazine is a forum which could aptly be used for recording events, fond memories and creative writing of the students. I am sure this will depict the aspirations and vision of the faculties and students.

Our Institution believes that the purpose of ‘Education’ is nothing but overall personality development of the students. Hence, focus is given not only to curriculum but also to co-curricular activities providing opportunities to every student to express his or her area of interest.

I feel proud being the Principal of such an esteemed institution where the management, teaching and non-teaching staff members are committed to the holistic development of the young minds.

My congratulations and best wishes to all those who are involved in bringing out the publication.

| 3. | Dr. Lalrofel | Secretary |
| 4. | Mrs. Lalhlimpuii | Asst. Secretary |

There was an interactive session where students, teaching and non-teachings staffs had the opportunities to ask various questions pertaining to the theme. The second session i.e. celebration session was hosted by Mrs. Chauzikpuii, Department of English. Due to Covid 19 outbreak, only members of the Women Development Cell and a few male staffs were invited to attend a short program in the College's Conference hall at 1;30-2;30 p.m. Dr. Angela Zoramthangi, WDC Chairman welcomed the gathering and she encouraged women not to surrender to our circumstances but instead "choose to challenge," as is the theme chosen for the IWD 2021 as we are all accountable to our own thoughts and actions. This will bring about change, make a difference and be an achiever against all odds. Prof. S. Haukhanlian Mate, Hon'ble Principal of our college, who was the Chief Guest of the function, shared his view on womanhood and encouraged the gathering to recognize the importance of women at home and in the society. He lauded the modern women as they are prospering and competing equally well with men in all fields. Women's cell then felicitated two women achievers - 1) Mrs. Chauzikpuii - for being elected as a Councillor in Aizawl Municipal Council and 2) Miss Zorintluangi Vanchhawng - for being a topper in University exam 2021 (History Core). Mrs. Chauzikpuii, Guest of Honour, also delivered an inspirational speech mentioning her struggle to achieve success, challenges she faced in politics as a woman and also how she overcame them. All the speakers of the event spoke from different aspects which truly gave the event a persona of what a woman is capable of, multitalented, dynamic and all rounder achievers. Mrs. Ramhmangaihi Ralte proposed the vote of thanks. The programme ended with a light refreshment.

A box was put up in the college campus for any kind of enquiry the students may have regarding HIV/AIDS. This box is opened at regular interval by the Professors and the Peer teams and questions were answered accordingly.
3. Steps were taken to promote more meaningful messages in the internet to educate the students against AIDS.
4. Due to the spread of Covid 19 within the state most of the activities were done within the college campus through the internet.

— LALHMANGAIHZUALI
CLASS REPRESENTATIVE

I am blessed to be able to give a brief report about the activities done by Department of History GANC 2020-2021

Firstly, I say “THANK YOU” to God for protecting us through these tough times, which we are facing and fighting throughout these years. I extend my thanks to our Principal and the professors of Department of History for being a great support, guidance and inspiration to us during those tough times we went through.

The activities that we had during the session 2020-2021 are:

Releasing of Department T-Shirt:

On 23rd of March 2021, our department released our own customized Dept. T-Shirt after waiting enthusiastically for a long time.

As we all have known that due to the pandemic outbreak, educational institutions were closed for a long time, so even though we were eager to attend the classes and make many memorable moments, we lost those chances.

While ending my report, I would like to leave a message to all the Magazine readers,” Never give up, just fight in your own way and success will fall in your hands”.

Lastly, the Department of History, BATCH of 2020-2021 will always appreciate Govt. Aizawl North College and wishes luck to all the students, Principal, Professors and the Staffs.

ENGLISH SECTION

On Metrical Composition

BY K. VANLALNEIHPUIA

Department of English

“The best poetry,” states Matthew Arnold in his The Study of Poetry, “is what we want; the best poetry will be found to have a power of forming, sustaining, and delighting us, as nothing else can.” This remains accurate hitherto, and yes, this verity, shall even after centennials remain unabated.

His boundless grasp on its potential and hold, Plato, in his Book X of the Republic, exiles all the bards from his ideal state, 375 years earlier before Christ was born. His scholar, Aristotle, through his Poetics abandons his pedagogue’s credo. From him, thus, commenced the new era for poetry.

History of mankind began with myths and legends of which were in the forms of poetry, epics or heroic poems. Stories were told and passed on from generations to generations not by prose but by lyrics. It is thus crystal clear that poetry, since the very conception of homo sapiens, found its root in the universe enormously, attached to our souls and sentiments.

As time passed by, there had considerably been substantial changes in their forms and manners. Those changes, up to now, continue interminably resulting from the taste of generations.

Poetry now has become disclosure of our feelings and ideas not just conveyance of tales. It has reached a situation that which Matthew Arnold stated, “More and more mankind will discover that we have to turn to poetry to interpret life for us, to console us, to sustain us.”

Because of the grand situation of poetry, there is a huge need in their composition - restrictions and refrain but no insensible interdiction. We must frame the maxims to thwart non-conformity and to preserve its sublimity. In today’s world, with swift advancement in literacy and automation, the production of poetry piled up exceptionally. This enhancement, if we, by poetic rules and touchstones do not moderate it will eventuate in tremendous production of unexalted and ignoble poetries abating the splendid position of poetry and its magnificent role.

But on what maxims and standards shall they be restrained? Can they indeed be inflicted?

This doubt shall continue to happen in as much as poetry abide with us. It is a certainty that no matter how much rules and norms be framed for an ideal poetry, they will not be pursued wholly nor be inferred by all the poets. Poetry, being imbued by the muse or of the selfgenerated inundation will however be composed thus by the direct of the muse.

Many critics of different times propounded their hypotheses and averred them as unequivocal. But Plato's ostracism of both the poet and poetry, Aristotle's Poetics elucidation of the nature of poetry, it's functions and effects, Horace's Ars Poetica and Longinus' On The Sublime determining how to write poetry, and Arnold's Touchstone Method for judging the the works of poets, etc. did not precipitate much credit in the sphere of poetry. People read them but not ensuing their scope.

Theoretically, they were and still are relevant, and will continue to be in the future. But, the impertinence is that all theories are not applicable in reality. For instance, poetry, being a spontaneous overflow, will concede no poet such an interval for the maxims during the twinkling.

Furthermore, observing each and every rules in the course of composing is impracticable. Following them all denotes not any excellency in the works of the poet. It is my stanch conviction that on metrical composition, a poet should be given a consummate liberty which will promote him compose an ideal poetry - an uncorrupted poetry unobstructed by any maxim. And to me, restrictions and refrain mean discarding unethical and misleading poetries, and welcoming of highly moral and destined poetries.

Immaculate verses are those lyricals which originated genuinely from the inspirited sentiment of the poets. Following the entire rules and forms does not signify a consummation in poetry. Stating this means not that I denote to banish their signification nor criticize their worth. A poet must know their significance and cogitatively perpend them their usefulness. If feasible, let their usage in the poetry be pondered. But this must not be granted utmost importance in the course of conduct for it can eventuate in attenuation of the work. Imperfect verse - inauthentic poetry.

Poetry, according to ancient Greek is a Divinely inspired. They believed that poetry originates from the 'Muse'. This can be seen from Homer's Iliad and Odyssey that he beseeched to the Muse adjuring him inspiration. Not merely in the Grecian poesy, but in our society this deific intuition is veritable as well.

Many poetries of highly-spirited are composed since time immemorial. Our folk songs are composed in the absence of such maxims. Let me adduce one such poesy from Lalawithangpa Tlawh Zâi:

*Buang khawpui vâl rual hi lung zûr maw,
Lelte nun nêr rodâng lêng âwi a kiu ve;
A vâwr e lunglên sâng thing lérâh*

While composing this song, I know for sure, that Awithangpa absolutely had no such apprehension on the rules and forms of poetry. Many of his songs were composed in spontaneous overflow whilst scanty span, but they continue to have such spirit that fashioned them to be highly influential and sentimental. If we judge them using that rules and forms, they might not be highly categorized. But their sway is immense and sublime indeed.

This, therefore, is clear that the forms mean not a perfection but employing them in addition to inspiration will make them ideal, excellence poesy.

Composing poetry is stiff and unquiet. It insists upon talent or Divinely inspiration. Nevertheless, it is precise that one can compose beauteous and swayful poesy when it comes the situation that might infuse and encourage him.

While composing poetry, it is considerable to apprehend the susceptibility and influence of it. As it is very influential, it can dissuade the readers if unethical and unpleasant ones are framed. This might eventuate in curtailing and subsiding the value of poetry.

In one of his poems, Keats said, "A thing of beauty is a joy forever." And this beauty, we might say, is the poetry itself. Poetry that succours our strain, that consoles, that facilitates, that mirrors, that expounds and elucidates our life is the best poetry. And 'It's loveliness increases; it will never Pass into nothingness; but still will keep A bower quiet for us, and a sleep.'

To my conclusion, let me be granted for solitary motion, that, dear reader if you never read at least one single poetry in your life, why don't you attempt for once? If you read an ideal poetry, it will instruct and afford pleasure which is the ultimate goal of poetry. And in doing so, reading them will soon become an addiction too dear to part with.

Depression - A silent killer

Everyone is drowning... somewhere in some corner,
Of increasing the depth of relationships... in countless distances.
Nuclear families are happening... nowadays in cities,
Where even children are failing... to cherish their dreams.

The loneliness starts increasing when... in this corner of life,
Then depression takes home... in the bed of this age.
In the shadow of the boundary wall of small rooms,
There is only one skylight and window left... now in the sky.

Parents have depression... to make their children's future come true,
Children are drowning... in fulfilling the dreams of their parents.
Elders have depression... because of not getting along with anyone,
And the environment is getting polluted... by the dark shadow of this depression.

Earlier this word was once in love with one half of the tongue,
But now every other person has the crown of having... depression on his head.
The government has also started appealing... to be free from depression, what should that poor person do... when his own minister is suffering the consequences.

Due to depression... somebody goes immersed in the unknown,
And someone embrace intoxication to reduce it.
Somebody eats tablets... sings songs of his depression,
So one finds himself depressed for the status symbol.

Small-small children get depressed by the tension of their exam.
And women narrate the ordeal of having to face it because of their one sided daily life.
Whatever be the reason for which is the shrinking of the cities... there is a new preparation to live life.

When life like a machine... will spin on only one axis,
Then the matter of depression in our mind... will automatically make itself home.
That's why it is necessary now... breathe in the open air,
Give your robot-like life the identity of being a human being.

Otherwise very soon this world will go into Depression...
And again the human... will be busy in finding its merging part.

Let's Meet Again

Let's meet again,
For the first time,
When your heart isn't borrowed,
And mine hasn't been battered,
When the timing never goes wrong,
And we don't keep missing each other.
Let's meet again,
When you are not the tsunami,
That tears my home apart.

Let's meet again,
When your love for me isn't a projection,
And my attachment to you isn't a scream,
For attention.
Let's meet again,
When I am not the hurricane that destroys your roots.

Let's meet again,
When you're right for me
And I'm imperfectly by wholeheartedly yours.
Let's meet again,
For the first time at our college long corridors
With all our love and scars.

You're

Eyes puffed,
Throat sore,
Pits of emptiness in my core,
3 hours of sleep again,
Will it ever end?
The voice I mean,
Replaying in my head,
"You're useless"
"You're vain"
"You're useless"
"You're a mess"
"You're insane"
Just go away for good,
Maybe that'll stop the pain.
