

SPECIAL LECTURE ON A STREETCAR NAMED DESIRE

The Department conducted a special lecture on A Streetcar Named Desire on 23rd March 2022. The play is a prescribed text for V Semester Paper XII - American Literature. The resource person for this lecture was Prof. Margaret L. Pachuau, a professor at the Department of English and Culture Studies, MZU.

Her lecture focussed on the American Dream and how the play encapsulates the moment we are now living. She talked about the main theme of the play – which is the intense desire to survive. She then focused on the main character and analysed how the concept of survival becomes so important for her. The lecture was followed by interactions and the students gained a lot of insight and gave them more understanding of their text. The special class was attended by 45 students and two teachers from the department.
